ONTARIO 1973:

The photographer and a friend, standing in the back yard of a country home in Ontario Province in June 1973, saw what they at first thought was an airplane approaching. Its silence and the very low level of the object caused one man to run for a camera. He snapped seven good color pictures of the object before it flew away. It was seen to disappear in the haze in the distance. The amount of haze in the photos increases in the last pictures as it moves away.
